Declare Working Women Do Not Want the Ballot in Arguments Opposing House Committee on Suffrage.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Opponents of woman suffrage appeared before the house rules committee today to argue why a committee on woman's suffrage should not be created by the house. The delegation of New York, who yesterday was re-elected president of the National Association opposed to women suffrage.

The delegation marched to the house of commons today to respect that followed the plan of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association which yesterday sent a delegation of nearly 1,000 women to present the suffragist side of the argument to the house committee.

Speakers for the opponents declared working women were opposed to the franchise because they would lose more than they would gain. This was in answer to the statement of the suffragists that the working woman needed the franchise and was strongly in favor of it.

It was contended that the suffrage movement was rapidly in its nature and that the ballot was not wanted by as many women as the suffragists declare. It was denied that the suffragist movement had grown to such proportions as to demand a house committee.

Members Warned. Suffragist sympathizers had been warned by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of their association, to remain away from the house of commons and give their undivided attention to the business of the suffrage convention to which they had been sent as delegates.

The list of anti-suffrage speakers today included Miss Alice Hill Chittenden of Ohio, Mrs. Robert Garrett and Mrs. Francis Redwood of Maryland, Mrs. A. J. George and Charles J. Underhill of Massachusetts, Joseph E. Ryle of Minnesota, Miss Emily Bissell of Delaware, Miss Minnie Bronson of Iowa, Mrs. P. J. Goodwin and Mrs. O. D. Oliphant of New Jersey, Miss Lucy J. Prie of Ohio, Dr. Lucy Hanister and Miss Ella A. Abbe of New York, Miss Ella B. Dorsey and Miss Ella Breshart of Washington, Miss Buck of New Jersey, Miss Harding and Miss Pelt of Pittsburgh, and Miss Eliza both McCracken of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Arthur Dodge, leader of the anti-suffrage movement, and charge of presenting arguments. She said the speakers represented "more than 90,000 American women, at over voting age."

Miss Alice Hill Chittenden said, "The women are of a class who are not eager to organize."

Mrs. Robert Garrett of Maryland declared that thousands of women in her state actively opposed woman suffrage.

Present Arguments. "The suffragists say women who do not want the vote are ignorant," said Miss Emily Bissell of Delaware. Mrs. A. J. George of Massachusetts characterized the proponents of equal suffrage rights as "suffrage feminists."

The anti-suffragist says that the feminist wild riot of individualism will die down and the temple of service stand clear again on the eternal hills. "The little child shall again lead us," she said.

Charles J. Underhill, of Massachusetts, representing a men's league declared that the suffragists were seeking the suffrage committee for the political influence it will give them in their campaign.

Mrs. L. E. Talbot of Ohio declared women opposed to suffrage believe they could accomplish more without the ballot.

PANKHURST'S ARREST CAUSES NO TROUBLE

Militant Leader Returning From America Taken Aboard Ship by British Officers Without Disturbance.

Plymouth, Eng., Dec. 4.—Contrary to expectations there was no disturbance when Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst militant suffragette leader, was arrested on her arrival from New York today.

Mrs. Pankhurst was transferred to a tug which had been chartered by the police and was taken to Devonport dock yard. The police officers boarded the majestic as soon as the liner had anchored, shortly after noon.

The police tug with the prisoner and the police on board steamed directly for Devonport. Everybody except officials was excluded from the government dock yards and Mrs. Pankhurst was landed without incident.

Two motor cars were waiting in the dock yards and a small party consisting of the prisoner and a number of detectives, entered the vehicles and started off immediately in the direction of London.

A body of militant suffragettes had congregated in the meantime in Plymouth, and after parading the streets with a band at their head marched to the docks.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, was lodged in jail at Exeter.

DAYS OF FIGHTING DRAWING NEAR END IN NORTH OF MEXICO

Looting of Isolated Bands May Continue But Important Struggles Averted, Say Rebels.

Leaders. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Juarez, Mex., Dec. 4.—While looting of isolated bands or companies of property by the rebels may continue, the important struggles averted, say the rebels, and the present situation is considered, according to opinions expressed by the rebel leaders today.

Villas Satisfied. Gen. Francisco Villa's assertion that there was much more fighting in the north because of the bank-rupt condition of the federal army, which caused them to evacuate so important a city as Chihuahua, has spread among the rebels. What most immediately concerns the so-called constitutional party now is the stabilization of its civil government.

Soie Curvivor. Mexico City, Dec. 4.—Col. Exequio Barcos, a federal officer who was left for dead with a bullet through his chest after facing a firing squad of rebels at Torreon, arrived in the capital today. He relates that he is the only one to escape death of the nineteen officers captured by General Villa, just before the evacuation of Torreon.

American Released. Washington, Dec. 4.—Immediate release of V. S. Windham, an American, and a companion named Dunn, held for ransom near Mazatlan, has been ordered by Gov. Riveros, commander-in-chief of the constitutional forces in Sinaloa, according to today's dispatches to the state department. Windham formerly was cashier of a bank at Mazatlan and is now superintendent of a ranch.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Discussion of a budget and of a new constitution or the National American Woman Suffrage association, the sending of a committee to urge President Wilson to send a message to congress asking immediate consideration of woman suffrage amendment, and election of officers for the ensuing year were the feature on today's program of the convention in 40th annual session here.

Debate over the adoption of a new constitution centered around the proposed methods of raising the money among the state and other affiliated organizations to carry on the work of the national body. "The states rights question was involved in the discussion," many of the delegates fearing that state and local suffrage bodies would be weakened if the national organization were allowed to secure its money as proposed.

BLOOD AND THUNDER PICTURE UNDER BAN

Ohio Photoplay Censorship Law Went Into Effect Today—Will Be Self-Supporting.

Columbus, O., Dec. 4.—Ohio's new movie censorship law went into effect today. Hereafter there will be no more pictures of the bunny-hug, and other dances which the late Mayor Taylor of New York had declared "obscene;" no more will be shown "blood and thunder" pictures.

Here is a partial list of objectionable scenes in the "movies" as seen by the Ohio censors:

Chinese pirates torturing victims, girl in the near altogether, bathing in a pool; thus placing a victim in front of a moving train; girl being stabbed and otherwise tortured; dragging of a girl and taking her into the house of sin; showing the interior of houses of ill-fame; music dance by women; woman poisoning her husband; a lynching scene.

The film exchanges are required to pay a fee for the censorship under the new law, this making its operation half sustaining.

HIGHEST GRADE EGGS TAKE JUMP IN PRICE

Pittsburgh, Dec. 4.—Although agents of the department of justice are here to investigate the cause of the high price of eggs, quotations for "selected eggs" as the Pittsburgh Butter and Egg Exchange terms them, were advanced today from 45 to 50 and 52 cents a dozen. Dealers declared this is because eggs to bear the name of "select" must not be more than a week old.

The government agents are investigating alleged price fixing by the Butter and Egg Exchange.

Eggs Go Down. Chicago, Dec. 4.—The egg market declined two to three cents today although reports showed a falling off. Ordinary firsts were quoted at 31 to 32 cents wholesale.

PRENDERGAST LEAVES PROGRESSIVE PARTY WHICH HE CONDEMNS

Believes Continuation of Third Party Will Insure Permanent Democratic Success.

New York, Dec. 4.—William A. Prendergast, controller of New York, formally announced his withdrawal today from the progressive party which he helped to found. "I considered," his statement says, "that the result of the presidential election made it evident that the third-party idea was not acceptable to the American people, and that the continuation of a third party movement could have no other effect than the permanent success of the democratic party."

He believed there must come an amalgamation of interest upon the part of republicans and progressives. Mr. Prendergast said he still believed in progressive principles, although he is not in sympathy with the course of the party.

ARREST LAND SHARKS ON FEDERAL CHARGE

Postoffice Inspectors Unveil Fraud Worked Through Moving Picture Shows in Western States.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 4.—An alleged land fraud which was conducted in several states through the medium of moving pictures shows that the United States mails led to the arrest here today of W. B. Burich, and N. H. Spitzer, of Louisville, Ky., and to their arraignment before a United States commissioner on a charge of conspiracy of the mails.

According to the federal charge, tickets were distributed among the spectators at picture shows and the announcement made that the holders of "lucky tickets" would be given a deed to a lot in Gurreyville, Sonoma county, California. It is alleged that the "lucky ones" were then required to pay more for the filing of papers than the lots were worth.

NEED FOR RADICAL STEPS TO PREVENT INCREASE OF UNFIT

Prof. M. F. Guyer Believes Segregation of Defectives Most Effective of Measures.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 4.—An increase of 35 percent in the population of the asylums of the state in one decade is proof of the need of some radical check on the production of defectives, according to Prof. M. F. Guyer of the University of Wisconsin. Studying the last report of the state board of control, he finds that over half the known insane of the state have been legally multiplying their kind or have legal sanction to do so, to say nothing of the unmarried mental defectives who have produced children. "Some insanities develop from heredity," he said; "some do not."

Regarding Sterilization. Amplifying statements made in a recent address, Prof. Guyer in an interview today gave further views on recent legislation bearing on eugenics. "The enactment of a sterilization law by the recent legislature is the answer of this body to the problem," he said. "How effective this will be is as yet highly problematical. Most of us who are studying the problem are inclined to pin our faith on segregation of defectives, especially the feeble-minded, during the reproductive period, and to the awakening of the general public to the dangers of certain marriages likely to result in the production of defectives."

The new marriage law which requires a pre-nuptial medical inspection, he said, is made largely for the protection of women. He did not share the view that it will lessen marriages materially, but believes it will induce many men to seek proper treatment, and that a vast proportion of the cases aimed at in the law can be cured.

Conditions Important. "I have more faith in the practical workings of this law than in the sterilization act," said Prof. Guyer. "Health laws, various states, are about the same on these points."

Specimen of crime and delinquency he continued, to examine the conditions. A sharp differentiation must be made to be proven how much of criminality is due to heredity, some saying 10 per cent and others 50 per cent.

Regarding a third enactment which requires physicians to report the number of individuals having certain venereal diseases, he said the intention is excellent and that it is high for the state to make such an investigation concerning the prevalence of these diseases, which is variously estimated, affect from 30 to 70 per cent of the male population.

Sex Hygiene Question. "Most of the what Prof. Guyer called the extremist movement in the vanguard of the sex hygiene movement is not accomplishing the public mind."

The whole matter of sex is so much a personal question, he said, and a matter of the emotions rather than the intellect that the agitator will fall short of any real good. The ones who will have to teach this question in the public schools, if it be turned over to the teachers themselves, are the least qualified of any combination, namely, unmarried women. If our schools were handled effectively by married men and women, there might be some hope. Even then, I question its value. We should increase the respect of the child for womanhood and motherhood, and demand that the control which should be proper habits without making sex a specific problem to throw in their heads."

Immorality and Imbecility. Prof. Guyer said the conviction is growing among students that immorality is a large proportion of crimes, gross immorality and degeneracy is due at the bottom to feeble-mindedness, and that therefore if we are to prevent crime, we must have companionship with a large measure of degeneracy at the same time. Practically one-sixth of the total expenditures of the state of Wisconsin go to maintain its defectives, paupers and criminals.

"This huge expense is far second to the humanitarian standpoint, pointed to the misery involved," concluded Prof. Guyer. "A great part of it is due to the fact that the state is forced to prevent our social maladies instead of waiting to cure them."

SENATOR CUMMINS CHARGES DEMOCRATS WITH A CONSPIRACY

Brands Caucus Action on Currency Measure as "Near Conspiracy Against Right of People."

Washington, Dec. 4.—Charges by Senator Cummins that the demands had approached "dangerously near a conspiracy against the right of all the people" in taking caucus action on the currency measure, marked the opening of today's session of the senate.

"This bill has been considered elsewhere and passed elsewhere," he said. "There will be no real debate on this measure but we simply have to hesitate to participate in it. I do not want to give it before the country, the color of actual deliberation. I cannot believe the American people will for a long period tolerate the legislation by caucus."

VOCATIONAL STUDY PROBLEMS SERIOUS

Difficult to Correlate New Training With Present Curriculum—Must Encourage Talent.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 4.—The tremendous problems for teachers, pupils and patrons involved in the introduction of vocational education, which is sweeping over the United States, was touched upon by Professor W. F. Book, director of vocational education in Indiana, in his preliminary report just presented to the state board of education. The last state legislature provided for the introduction of vocational education in Indiana's public schools.

That it amounts to a revolution in educational methods, that present teachers and school authorities haven't the slightest conception of how to institute and organize the new education, and that a survey of the state must be made to find out what work can profitably be taught to pupils were some of the points Professor Book made. In order not to throw aside the years of work that went to build up the present educational system, Professor Book recommended that a commission be appointed to correlate the vocational courses with the present system of teaching English, Arithmetic, Geography, etc.

The feature that is likely to require the situation from failure, or at best, carry it to a costly success, according to Professor Book, is that "everybody is interested and willing to make an earnest effort to begin and prosecute the work."

"It seems at this time absolutely necessary to help the teachers to teach the new education," said Professor Book, "and to help superintendents, school boards and those interested in making the adjustments for our vocational educational problem. Investigations into professions, salaries, chances for promotions, necessary preparation, requirement for success and into new vocations opening up."

"An expert should also be employed to devise and standardize tests that might be used by school authorities to detect marked ability in our super-normal or bright children for art, music, mechanics, science, business or invention."

MANITOWOC IS LOSER IN EXTENSION FIGHT

Judge Kerwin Issues Injunction Restraining Placing of Charge on City Tax Roll.

Manitowoc, Dec. 4.—The city of Manitowoc lost the first round of the court fight to uphold a 30 cent per foot charge against property owners for extension of water mains for the municipal water plant. Judge Kerwin in circuit court yesterday issued an injunction restraining the city clerk from placing in the tax roll a special assessment of $80 against Fred Veth, a west side man.

The tax is attacked on the ground of unconstitutionality, and that the city does the work instead of awarding it under contract and that no schedule has ever been filed with the rate commission.

EMPEROR WILLIAM TO USE BIG STICK IN ALSACE MATTER

Prepares to Interfere Personally to Put End to Differences Between Military and Civil Authorities.

Berlin, Dec. 4.—Emperor William decided today that the time had come for him to interfere personally with the full weight of his authority in order to put an end to the differences between the civil and military authorities in Alsace-Lorraine. His majesty this morning summoned the governor-general of Alsace-Lorraine, Count Charles von Wedel, and the commanding general, Lieutenant General Berthold von Deimling, to Donauesschingen.

Situation in Parliament. The unsatisfactory nature of Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg's explanation yesterday in the imperial parliament and the brusque statement of Major General Eric von Falkenhayn, minister of war, it is pointed out, have not only insured the passage of the resolution expressing non-confidence in the government, but have made possible a serious hitch in the budget program. It is not unlikely that the imperial parliament will refuse to discuss the budget until it receives satisfactory assurances that there will be no repetitions of such incidents as have occurred at Zabern.

Chancellor Aroused. The imperial chancellor, aware that even his own supporters are blaming him for the absence of any definite declaration as to how he is going to deal with the offenders in the incident, appeared in the imperial parliament at the opening of today's session. He was evidently much exercised over the situation. The floor at once, he declared that Emperor William had expressed extreme displeasure over the occurrences at Zabern and had given the military the command to strict orders that such violations of the law as the clearing of the streets by the military and the arrest of civilians should not be repeated.

Helweg in Denial. Von Bethman-Hollweg denied the existence of a secret inner government in Alsace which over-ruled the decision of the recognized authorities—as had been reported—and said he would resign instantly if such a thing were true.

Vote of Non-Confidence. A vote of non-confidence in the German government in connection with its attitude in regard to the trouble between the military and the civil authorities was adopted by the imperial parliament today by 293 against 54. One blank paper was handed in while 49 members were not present.

HUSBAND POISONER PRONOUNCED INSANE

Mrs. Adolph Behnke, Girl Bride of Ten Days Committed to Northern Hospital at Oshkosh.

Manitowoc, Dec. 4.—Mrs. Adolph Behnke, the girl bride of ten days, charged with attempting to poison her husband by placing paria green in coffee she served him, was adjudged insane yesterday afternoon and committed to the northern hospital for the insane at Oshkosh today. The girl, who had been married but ten days, and after a courtship of but two weeks, is but nineteen years old. It is said that Behnke, who escaped death by reason of the husband's taking a dose of the poison was given him, will appeal to the court for annulment of the marriage on the ground that his wife was insane at the time he married her.

SHAMEFUL CONDITION IN LODGING HOUSES

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, Investigating After Fire, Says Places Should Be Closed.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 4.—"Every one of those places should be closed," declared Mayor Fitzgerald after he had completed early today a tour of several houses among cheap lodging houses similar to the Arcadia, where twenty-eight men were killed in yesterday morning's fire.

"The conditions," continued the mayor, "are shameful. It is the duty of the city to care for these unfortunate who are forced to seek such places for their lodging."

"Today I am going to have a conference with the building commissioner and the corporation counsel to see if something cannot be done to safeguard the lives of men who have to spend their nights in such places. I shall suggest the erection of model lodging houses by the city or state."

STILL GUARD TRAP SMOTHERING OUTLAW

Will Not Allow Fires to Die Down Until Tomorrow—May Have Escaped By Unusual Tunnel.

Bingham, Utah, Dec. 4.—The smothering of the Utah-Apex mine in which Rafael Lopez, clever of six men took refuge just a week ago, continued today with the likelihood that not until tomorrow would the fires be extinguished by the government.

The belief grew today that the desperado had escaped from the mine which was meant to be his tomb. Odds narrowed from two to one to even money that he had not crawled to the poisonous gases that have been generated in the thirty miles of subterranean workings since Monday.

DR. CRAIG FIANCEE TESTIFIES AGAINST HIM

Shelbyville, Ind., Dec. 4.—Miss Katherine Fleming of Avon, Virginia, referred to by counsel for the state as the fiancee of Dr. William B. Craig, testified today for the prosecution at the trial of Dr. Craig for the murder of Dr. Helen Knabe.

Denial was made by Miss Fleming that she and Dr. Craig were engaged to be married.

REPORT SCORE DEAD IN DALLAS FLOODS; HUNDREDS HOMELESS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Dallas, Tex., Dec. 4.—Rainfall continued today in the flood districts of central Texas, adding to the menace of high waters, which already has cost thirteen lives and about one million dollars property damage. The area of the overflowing river spread rapidly last night, the most important new point effected being San Antonio. The flood today covered portions of nearly every county from San Antonio northward almost to the panhandle, and from this point eastward to include all the important cities of north and central Texas. Houston, Beaumont and Galveston alone were not threatened.

The homeless numbered thousands, but inasmuch as they were divided in small groups throughout the immediate flood territory no serious relief problems were presented.

At Belton, a high water mark of the town was cut off by waters, baskets of provisions were propelled on telephone wires to flood victims.

Conditions Perilous. South Bosque, near Waco, reported that the rising water was so high that there until yesterday, came in a wall of water about ten feet high. The residents had been warned. Near Marlin 175 passengers on a Houston & Texas Central train were trapped all night. The flood water rose over the rails until it occasionally lapped the lower steps of the coaches.

The Marlin overflow is from the Brazos river bed. It is estimated that the Brazos is ten miles wide at some points. Marlin is five miles from the river.

At Waco, where several thousand persons were driven from their homes or the Brazos flood, no loss of life has been reported.

Deaths Reported. Inundation of the cemetery stopped burials throughout the city. Flaming mills around old cemeteries were used to rescue the marooned and salvage property. The flood's death list is at Belton five members of the Polk family; at Brownwood, D. Lyton; at Dallas, B. L. Lacey; at Grand Prairie, John A. Maulsby; at High Bank, near Marlin, two negroes; at Austin, three unidentified men.

At Fort Worth, on the Trinity river, yesterday's apparent relief from flood conditions amounted to seven morning when a dangerous new rise set in.

Report Twenty Dead. The death list was increased to twenty today when seven negroes were drowned at Hemeo, Texas, where out this morning at night rescuing many persons caught in their homes.

At San Antonio. San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 4.—Floods which have driven thousands of persons from their homes in other parts of Texas reach San Antonio today, where the river here went out of its banks and inundated several sections of the city. Rescuing parties hastily organized began carrying the marooned to safety. The damage to property is considerable. No life loss has been reported here.

After several hours the flood began to recede almost as rapidly as it had risen.

ALBERT H. STICKNEY IS CALLED BY DEATH

Resident of Janesville Since Boyhood and Highly Respected Citizen Passes Away Last Evening.

Albert H. Stickney, a resident of Janesville since boyhood, a highly respected citizen and veteran of the Civil War, passed away at his home at 221 North Academy street at nine-thirty o'clock Wednesday evening following an extended illness. For the past three months he had been an invalid and has borne his sufferings patiently and nobly. He was 72 years of age.

Mr. Stickney was born at Hartwick, Otsego county, New York, June 8, 1841. He came to Janesville with his parents when he was a small boy about five years of age and had resided here ever since, except for the time spent in the Civil war and a brief period of residence in Chicago. He received his early education and training in the public schools of the city and in April of 1861 enlisted in the 2nd Wisconsin volunteer infantry. He met with an accident at Harrisburg, Pa., a short time afterward, but bravely determined to engage in the fight to save his country. He was enlisted in the 62nd Illinois regiment and saw active service for over a year, being honorably discharged in 1863.

After the war he returned to Janesville and entered the employ of the Northwestern railroad as a brakeman, being promoted to the positions of freight conductor and passenger conductor. He remained with the Northwestern company for twenty-five years, retiring from service in 1891 on account of failing health.

Mr. Stickney was widely known among the older railroad men of the city and in the eastern and was esteemed as a true and faithful workman.

He was married on Dec. 10, 1864, to Miss Sturza Stormes, in this city. To them were born two daughters, one dying in infancy and the other, Mrs. E. E. Buckingham, resides in this city. Besides his wife and daughter Mr. Stickney is survived by two brothers, Delbert and William Stickney of Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Mr. Stickney was endowed with noble qualities which endeared him to his many friends. He was ever a home-loving man, a kind, loving husband and father, thoughtful, patient, honorable and high-minded. He had witnessed the growth of Janesville since the days when it was but a small hamlet, and had played a large part in its quiet way in the general progress. He belonged to that staunch class of pioneers to whom the city and county are deeply indebted and whose number is being rapidly diminished as the years pass.

Funeral services will be held from the home on North Academy street at two o'clock Saturday afternoon.

EARLY JANESVILLE RESIDENT RECALLS HER PIONEER DAYS

Mrs. Margaret King HERN Writes to Gazette From St. Paul—Left City Before the War.

The following letter was received by the Gazette yesterday from St. Paul. After renewing a subscription, the writer says: "Of course I like the paper. I think it is printed at the corner of East Milwaukee and Elbert streets, which belonged to the King family—my family—for about sixty years. I think. Father bought it from Luke Stoughton in 1847 or '8, Stoughton, Dane county, was named for him."

"I like the way the Postwick boys keep their father's memory green, in their advertisements. 'Joe,' their father, was a friend of mine, in the long ago." The Gazette in the past has helped me learn to read. We came from Ohio to Wisconsin in 1844 and left Janesville in covered wagons in 1857 for the territory of Minnesota.

"Respectfully,"
"MARGARET KING HERN."

DEALERS ARE WARNED TO BE CAREFUL OF THEIR SALES

County Implement Dealers Hold Session at Beloit—J. A. Craig Talks on Sales.

Thirty-one men representing the Rock and Walworth County Implement dealers' Association met at the council chambers in Beloit Tuesday for the purpose of hearing addresses and remarks dealing with the best interests of their business. The cities represented were Beloit, Janesville, Edgerton, Milton Junction, Clinton, Shople, Avalon, Sharon and Caladonia.

The principal address of the afternoon was delivered by J. A. Craig of Janesville, president of the National Implement and Vehicle Association. Mr. Craig confined his remarks principally to the dealers, warning them to be very careful in the future as it was a well established fact that the goods of the implement dealers were retained at a closer margin than in any other line of business.

Remarks were made by other speakers, who were called on by Henry Ebbett of Edgerton, president of the Rock county association. The session was declared a big success by everyone who attended.

CAME TO WRONG PLACE TO ENJOY CELEBRATION

James Hughes, a transient, learned that he came to the wrong town to enjoy an unseemly spree when he landed in the lock-up last night and received a thirty day jail term in Judge Maxfield's court this morning. Otto Strampe pleaded not guilty to a drunkenness charge and it will be given his trial tomorrow morning.

HOTELS AND CAFES MUST GET PERMITS

All Eating Houses Must Take Out Licenses Under Terms of Law Effective Jan. 1st.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 4.—Many hotels and restaurants in Wisconsin have already applied for permits as demanded by a new law effective Jan. 1, 1914, and order for owners to comply more easily, the state board of health is today sending out an application blank and a copy of the law to all hotels and restaurants listed in the Wisconsin Catecheter.

All Must Have Permits.
Of the board's efforts in this direction, Dr. C. A. Harper, secretary, said: "This is the most complete list of these establishments that has ever been made. We find that there are many hundreds of hotels and restaurants which we will be unable to communicate on account of not having the proper address. Since the new law is now in effect in Wisconsin after Jan. 1, 1914, without a permit will be guilty of a violation of the law, all hotel and restaurant owners not receiving application blanks must apply at once. The enforcement of this law is purely a health problem and under its provisions the sanitation in many hotels and restaurants will be materially improved. The traveling public has demanded legislation and we are fortunate in having what experts state to be one of the best hotel and restaurant laws in the country."

Board Provides Rules.
"No attempt was made to incorporate into the law detailed regulations for the construction and operation of a hotel or restaurant. Instead of doing this the state board of health is authorized to adopt and enforce rules and regulations which shall have the full effect of law, and whenever necessary these rules can be modified to meet conditions as they arise without the necessity for legislative enactment."

It is a common practice to serve hamburger sandwiches and other food in billiard halls, bowling alleys and other places of like description. Wherever a charge is made for lunches and meals in such establishments, a permit under the new law must be taken out. This is a recent ruling of the attorney general.

"In free lunches O. K.
"In all cases where free lunches are served in saloons or other business places simply as a bait to attract customers to the main business," says his opinion, "such places should not be considered as restaurants under the definition of our statute. But lunches and meals are served and a charge is made for them in any saloon or other business establishment and is a part of the regular business; they contribute to the income and profits of such business."

The fees for each permit is $2, provided that in hotels containing more than thirty sleeping rooms for the use of transient guests it shall be $3. The department will be used to inspect hotels and restaurants and otherwise carry out the law's provisions.

Ancient Time-Telling Methods.

The invention of the sun dial is generally attributed to a Grecian astronomer who died about 547 B. C. The dial was followed by the hour glass and this by the water clock, which marked time by the escape of water through an orifice. These were introduced into Rome about 155 B. C., but are believed to have been in use in Chaldea and Egypt for a hundred years previous to that date.

Doubling Human Life.

In 1860 the public health conditions of New York were in so low a state that the average length of life of the inhabitants was 30 years. In 1912 these conditions had been improved so that the average length of life was 46 years. Thus the value of human life, reckoned in terms of time alone, had more than doubled in less than half a century.—Century Magazine.

Makes Them Feel Safer.

"Any girl," says a lady lecturer, "can marry any man she wants to if she holds his image in her mind." All the same, most girls consider it a bigger asset to hold his letters in her pocket.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

SOFTENING THE JAR.

This is for married folks for whom the hymeneal harmony is a little or perhaps much out of tune.

Sad that it should ever be so, but it is.

Men and women being finite, imperfect beings and life together tending to bring out what is worst in human nature as well as what is best, the course of true love after marriage as well as before it does not always run smooth.

To bring the current back into its proper channel, to confine it within the banks of mutual forbearance and understanding and allowance, should be the aim of all counselors. Blowing up the dams of selfishness and misunderstanding is a good work.

There's a wise man sitting on the bench of a high court in England. In the words of a recent news dispatch:

"Justice Bargarne Deane has introduced a novelty in the administration of the English marriage law which is welcomed in many quarters as a common sense recognition of the fact that married couples, like ships, occasionally require time to 'find themselves.'"

So Mr. Justice Deane—"oh, wise and upright judge!"—gave a decree of separation to a woman suing her husband, but added the proviso that it should not become effective for twelve months.

In the meantime the couple are to be parted for twelve months so that they may have time to "find themselves" and learn whether or not time will reconcile their differences.

To devoted couples, calmly, placidly pursuing their lives together, secure in the consciousness of mutual love and esteem, separation for a year would be an intolerable calamity.

To the couple whose troubles followed their stony path to the very bar of justice it will go to prove that their separation should be made permanent or it will open their eyes to the happiness which they have lost temporarily.

It is noted in the news that while there had been trouble, grief and annoyance in the disrupted home the causes of difference were not serious enough to warrant permanent separation.

So the year of probation will probably bring about healing of the spirit and reunion.

There is here the germ of a suggestion for those married folks who find it hard to agree. Why not try the probation plan for awhile?

If you have not read the ads you have not read ALL the news.

HEADACHY, COSTIVE BILIOUS,—"CASCARETS"

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, mean Liver and Bowels are clogged—Cheer up!

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, indigestible food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

OBITUARY

Benjamin Voight.
Benjamin Voight, a Whitewater man, passed away at the hospital at a quarter to twelve yesterday noon. He had been brought there only two hours earlier. The cause of death was sarcoma of the brain. Voight had been ill for two weeks. The remains will be taken to Whitewater at ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

Good Description.
Little Emily's mother had gone shopping. Upon returning she brought home to Emily a pair of pink socks fashionable for smart children in summer. That evening some ladies called upon her mother. Emily left the room, and a short while after the three-year-old returned with her socks on. "Look!" she exclaimed to the visitors, "mother bought me a pair of low-neck stockings."

GINK AND DINK. PETEY WILL BE GOOD NATURED FOR A WHILE NOW

Sport Snap Shots

Quite a few of the major league vets will have minor league managerial jobs next season. Never was there quite the interest among the old-time major leagues in locating a bush league manager's berth as this year and seldom has there been so many opportunities. Arthur Devlin and Harry McCormick of the Giants are both slated to manage minor league teams next year. Devlin taking hold of a Pacific coast bunch and Mc-Cormick is going to the Southern league. "Doc" White, the well-known White Sox twirler, has two propositions he is considering, one with Duquesne and the other at Venice, Cal. Matty McIntyre and George Mullin are both on the outlook for managerial jobs and Mullin figures on copping a place with the Fort Wayne Central league club. There is a nice chance for a live member at Toledo, the Mud Hens being in need of some one who can steer them pennantward. Both Bill Bradley, the well known third sacker, and Johnny Dobbis are mentioned in this connection. Fielder Jones has been urged to accept a number of neat propositions of this sort, but he declared that he is content to stick where he is, at the head of the Northwestern league. Jones says he is through with the playing end of baseball forever.

Joe Tinker's release from the management of the Cincinnati Reds and the circumstances of that affair bring to mind other cases where managers denied the privilege of running the teams proved unsatisfactory and were done away with. Frank Chance, ex-manager of the Cubs; George Stovall, ex-manager of the Browns; Brasnahan, ex-manager of the Cardinals; Jake Stahl, ex-manager of the Red Sox; Bill Dahlen, ex-manager of the Dodgers, and Harry Wolverton, ex-manager of the Highlanders, are a few examples of managers who never had complete charge of things. Joe Tinker takes his place in illustrious company. All of the foregoing were capable men and had they been given half a show they would have put over a winning team. As it was, they were hemmed in on every side by restrictions—they could never make a move without the complete sanction of every stockholder and a long list of friends and relatives. Consider some of the managers who have made a success. Fielder Jones, Jawn McGraw, Connie Mack and Clark Griffith all have had the whole matter in their own hands and have not been hampered by training and querulous club owners. The result is that they have built up ball clubs that have made money. When they wanted to buy or sell a player or make any sort of a deal they simply went ahead and did it. Which is as it should be.

Knockout Mars, who recently stepped into prominence in Cincinnati by giving Johnny Kilbane a hard-fought battle, seems to be a temperamental little guy. Mars instead of taking pride in his performance against the champ is very much cut up over it and feels that he should have walked away with a victory. He is unwilling to forgive himself for not having grabbed the featherweight crown. Mars scored a knockdown on Kilbane, an achievement that rarely falls to the lot of a comparative novice. The Cincinnati kid had fought only about eight or nine professional battles previous to meeting Kilbane and his showing was phenomenal. Could he be placed under the direction of a capable manager and wisely cared for, Mars would shortly prove a tough contender for the featherweight belt. At any rate he need not repine over not having grabbed the title before he had been in the game a year.

BAUMGARDNER WITH KANSAS CITY FEDS

George Baumgardner.

George Baumgardner, formerly with the St. Louis Browns and one of the most promising young pitchers in the American league, has signed a contract to play with George Stovall's Federal league team at Kansas City next year. The St. Louis club will contest Baumgardner's right to join the outlaws.

NOT MERELY A LUXURY

CITY PEOPLE HAVE NO MONOPOLY OF THE AUTO.

Dwellers in the Country Districts Also Take Part in the Enjoyment Afforded by Machines.

People who live in cities and see the automobiles whizz by are apt to think of the machine as a luxury pure and simple and one not to be indulged in unless there is plenty of spare funds to pay for it. It is all the more confusing then to go to the country and find that there, with nearly all classes and where wealth is less frequent, the automobile is regarded as a money-maker, a cost-reducer, a pillar-up of profits—in short, a necessity.

Ten years ago the farmer sniffed contemptuously at the very mention of an automobile. Today, in proportion to population, more automobiles are used in the country than in the city. Furthermore, while the motorcar may in most instances remain a luxury to the urban dweller, the people of the rural districts are awakening more and more to the fact that to them it is a convenience that adds a neat sum yearly to the profit side of their ledgers.

It is surprising to learn that even among so-called poor farmers the proportion of automobile owners is increasing at a much more rapid rate than in the cities. Perhaps the investment may be made in a cheap second-hand car, but even then it shows plainly the trend toward the use of this modern invention. As the popularity of the automobile increased lovers and advocates of horses declared: "Well, horses will never be discarded on the farms; the farmers couldn't get along without them." Yet the farmer has learned, vastly quicker than the city man, where he can get a return value out of a machine.

Everywhere can this new condition of affairs be found. It was first noticeable in the west, and then gradually made its way eastward. Figures from the New England states, New York and Pennsylvania reveal the rapidly growing use of the automobile in the country district. The far south has its quota, and even the poorest sections of Virginia are getting well filled with machines. This was shown during a recent trip to Virginia, when the justice of the peace of a small village proudly declared: "You should be in our town toward the end of the week. Then the farmers from miles away come in here with their families in automobiles. I tell you, we're getting to have a heap of cars around these parts."

There is no place where you can spend your money and get as much for it as in the classified columns.

POLICE TAKE PAIR OF CROOKS WHO TRY DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

Officers Champion and Smith in Hot Chase Capture Housebreakers
Who Ransack Woletz Home.

John Blummer, of Minneapolis, and Henry Ireland, of Elroy, were captured by Officers Peter Champion and Harry Smith this afternoon after a chase down the railroad tracks for a mile for robbing the home of Edward Woletz at 1020 North Bluff street. Neighbors saw the two men rip off the screen to the kitchen door in attempting to gain an entrance and phoned to the police at one o'clock.
Finding that no one was at home at the Woletz residence the thieves gained entrance through the cellar door and completely ransacked the house in their efforts to find valuables. Their boot consisted of a forty dollar watch, two gold chains and several trinkets, a pair of gloves and a new overcoat. While at their work they repeatedly refreshed themselves with some wine that they found in the cellar and when they left the house filed a quart bottle for future emergencies.

When the officers arrived at the house they found that the men had left and had started down the railroad tracks toward the Elroy. Officer Champion gave chase while Champion started in a roundabout way to head them off. By going through the stock yards Champion nabbed the men before they could escape. Officer Smith who was waiting on them in the chase down the tracks. All the articles were found on them, including several house keys, two of them being identified as belonging to the Woletz home.

According to the story that Blummer and Ireland told the police they had come to this city on one of the morning freight trains and in an exploring trip up the river had come upon the unguarded house. Both appear to be railroad men, having time books for the Northwestern railroad. They are being held at the city hall police station and will be brought before Judge Maxfield Friday morning.

An Unusual Cigar Display

Splendid Display of El Marko Cigars in People's Drug Co. Window.

Occasionally the various cigar journals mention some window display of cigars, having unusual merit, in metropolitan cities. The El Marko will surely call forth mention in all these journals. For its individuality and novelty it is unusually noticeable. It is an absolute departure from the average cigar display. The idea was conceived and executed by Mr. Leon Schleuter. The cigars, leaf

PROMINENT CITIZEN IN NEW EXPERIENCE

E. J. Schmidley Spends Several Hours in City Lock-up Result of Words With Officer.

Because he persisted in driving on the wrong side of the street although warned of his carelessness by Patrolman William Gower, with whom he engaged in a heated altercation, upon repeating the offense, with the evident intent of vexing the officer, it is alleged, E. J. Schmidley, former alderman and a well known citizen, spent several hours in the city lockup last evening.

When Schmidley made the turn at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets on the wrong side between five and six o'clock last evening, his carelessness was called to his attention by Officer Gower. Schmidley went as far as Court street and then came back to repeat the offense in front of the eyes of the policeman.
"Now what are you going to do about it?" is the remark with which he is alleged to have taunted Gower.
"I'll show you right quick," was Gower's reply, and Schmidley was unceremoniously taken to the police station where he was thrown into the lock-up to think over his conduct.
During the evening Chief of Police Ransom released Schmidley upon the latter's promise to respect the laws and ordinances and to treat police officers with the civility due them.

Eagles' Attention! Annual election of officers and regular meeting tonight. A full attendance is desired.

May Be Something in Dreams.

Belief in the prophetic power of dreams has run round a rosy. Men formerly thought dreams foretold future events, dreams gave good advice for the regulation of one's future conduct, dreams told where to find lost articles. Then as we grew more sophisticated we regarded dream omens as mere superstition. Lately some of the closest investigators of dreams have begun to switch to the former opinion.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rowe of Genoa Junction, Illinois, were here Tuesday. Mr. Rowe was here investigating the proposition of renting the Anderson and Terwilliger garage. Mr. Rowe comes with splendid recommendations as to sobriety, industry and experience, and it is hoped they will close the deal and move to Clinton.

F. J. Wurtz of New York City, general manager of the Dry Milk company, made a visit of inspection to the local plant Tuesday, which, thanks to the exceedingly capable ability of the local manager, I. J. Harvey, he found in excellent condition and as neat, clean and orderly as a parlor.

F. P. Olson has resumed his old position with the Dry Milk company after being out all summer, otherwise employed.

VOICES OPPOSITION TO NEW LABOR LAW

Fight is Waged at Meeting of Equity Society at La Crosse Against Injunction Law Before Congress.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, Dec. 4.—An appeal from Frank J. Webber of Milwaukee, representing the American Federation of Labor for help in procuring the passage by congress of the anti-trust and injunction bill now pending, precipitated a fight in the state convention of the American Society of Equity here today. The bill permits labor unions and co-operative farmers' societies to make agreements enhancing wages or the cost of the necessities of life without rendering themselves liable to injunction.

The matter was brought before the convention by the secretary, M. West Tubbs of Madison. President D. O. Mahoney of Viruqua objected to immediate passage of a resolution endorsing the anti-injunction bill. He declares that the farmers must go slow in calling for special legislation and feared that it might be unwise to cripple the injunction power of the court. After a sharp debate the resolution was referred to the legislative committee for investigation.

Collins was given a fourteen-year sentence to San Quentin in 1906 for perjury, alleged to have been committed during the course of his trial for bigamy.

Hen Puts Sermon on Egg.

Arthur Moore, a farmer living near Shuquak, Miss., found an egg on which appears the words "Watch and Pray," in raised letters as perfectly formed as if molded. The "W" and "P" are in capitals and the others letters in lower case. Moore says he found the egg in a nest with two others.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina is preparing some bills which it is believed will meet with the approval of the commission.

NEW LUNCH BOX

Top and One Side in One Piece and Hinged at Bottom.

Here is something new in lunch boxes devised by a Rhode Island man. Instead of having a lid, like the ordinary lunch box, the top and one side are removable together, leaving the box open at two places for the easy packing or emptying of it. The top, one side and a flap that extends down on the other side are made in one piece and hinged at the bottom of the side portion. There is an opening in the flap which fits over a catch on the opposite side and can be fastened with a small padlock if the owner but to store his lunch where a fellow-workman may be hungry and unscrupulous. The edges of the box have an interlocking band and the edges of the removable section are crimped and have a wire running through them. This ensures a tight fit when the box is closed.

VERY EASY TO AVOID CONTRACTING CANCER

Professor Metchnikoff Declares Disease is Produced by Microbes and is Not Hereditary.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Petersburg, Dec. 4.—It is easy enough to avoid getting cancer, says all you have to do: Pass your knives, forks, and spoons through the flame of a Bunsen burner before using; refrain from eating raw foods; boil and filter all water; see that all vegetables and fruits are cooked before eating. Toast your bread to destroy microbes on the surface.

This is the advice of Professor Metchnikoff, the famous Russian bacteriologist who claims to have established absolutely that cancer is not hereditary but is produced by microbes from the outside. "If more than one member of a family develops cancer it is simply because they live in unsanitary surroundings or fail to observe proper precautions against infection," says the professor.

STATE PAYS TAXES ON FOREST RESERVE

Tax Commission Has Just Completed Assessment of Lands in Northern Counties.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Dec. 4.—The state tax commission has completed the assessment of the state lands within the forest reserve. Under a bill passed at the last session of the legislature the state will pay town, school and county taxes on its lands to the localities within which these lands are located. Where the state held large pieces of land it was found that with these lands off the local tax roll, the taxes were so high that some of the settlers considered it a great hardship. The actual assessment of the lands has been made by Vincent Stork of Price county, William Landreit, Ashland; George A. Huber, Superior; and Alexander Melroe of Rhineland. The lands assessed are within the counties of Oneida, Forest, Iron, Vilas and Price. Under the law the tax on the state lands is limited to one and one-half per cent of the assessed valuation. The final assessment figures are now being compiled by the tax commission. All of the special assessors have rendered special reports to the tax commission.

RECENT KANSAS DROUGHT BOOSTS CORRECT FARMING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Manhattan, Kansas, Dec. 4.—Last summer's drought proved a big boost to scientific farming. When the dry heat began to wither the corn the Agricultural College authorities advised immediate construction of silos and the hundreds of farmers who followed their advice not only saved their crops but are now converted to the use of the silos.

Then too, the dry weather furnished an excellent proof of what scientific farming would do. Those who farmed in accordance with the scientifically accepted methods but did not cut their corn, produced a partial yield. Those who refused to adopt modern methods had no corn at all. This contrast was of course most evident in the counties where the state maintains demonstration farms. Further proof of the awakening effect of the drought is seen in the fact that attendance at the farm institutions this year has shown an increase of 170 per cent over that of 1912.

MIND VERSUS WILL.

IS IT NOT strange that the average person is so much more willing to acknowledge weakness of will than weakness of intellect?

The will is the mainspring of the man. If the will be weak and ineffectual, though the works be marvelously perfect, and the case rarely beautiful, the whole is unsatisfactory and futile.

And yet the average man is not half so ashamed to admit that he hasn't the will power to make himself do things, as he would be to admit he hasn't the brain.

For instance, I know a clever writer in the advertising field who could do big things, if he only had half as much push as he has brilliance. He realizes this, and instead of being ashamed of his lack of push, as he would be of lack of talent, he admits it freely, and even seems to take a sort of pride in it. Just the other day he told me of an opportunity which he had to do a booklet for a big firm. He had submitted a clever idea and had been given the order at once. He went home, all enthusiasm, eager to seize his pen and get at the work. Something delayed him, the enthusiasm died down and he actually let the whole thing slide, because he hadn't the will power to send himself back to it after the enthusiasm had vanished. If he had filled the order satisfactorily—which he was amply qualified to do—he could have had all the work he wanted from that firm. If he had had that big chance and failed, from lack of ability, he would have been terribly ashamed. But since it was merely from lack of will power—the biggest and most important thing of all—he tells about it freely and almost with pride.

In the same way, the student at school or college, who demonstrates he could do brilliant things, if he would only exert himself, but is too weak-willed to do it, is somehow considered far superior to the student who fails of honors, in spite of faithful and sustained effort, because he hasn't the mental quickness and intellectual equipment.

And yet in the second instance, the failure is not the man's fault, whereas in the first it is.

Or is it? Perhaps after all that is unjust. I suppose men are born with strong or weak wills just as they are born with brilliant or commonplace minds, but in both cases, what we are born with, is only half the score. What we die with, what we make of the original endowment is the other half. The will can be developed, as the mind, and the man who fails to do it ought to be just as ashamed of mediocrity and failure in this respect, as he would in any other.

The KITCHEN CABINET

IT IS a fine notion of life to listen to the loom. God puts on the warp in those circumstances in which we find ourselves, and which we cannot change. The warp is wrought by the shuttle of everyday life. It is made of very homely threads sometimes, common duties, unpromising and unwelcome tasks. But whoever tries to catch days' work in the spirit of patient loyalty to God is weaving the texture whose other side is fairer than the one he sees.

THE NUT SEASON.

German Nut Loaf.—Sift together four cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a teaspoonful of salt and a half cupful of sugar. Add one cupful of chopped walnuts, one cup of Sultana raisins, one egg well beaten, and two cupfuls of milk. Mix well together and put into well buttered pans and allow it to stand for twenty-five minutes. Bake in a slow oven for forty-five minutes.

Nut Mince Pie.—Mix together half a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice and salt, then add a cup of chopped walnut meats, two cupfuls of chopped apples, half a cupful each of vinegar, fruit juice, and sugar, and a cupful of raisins. Mix well together and bake in two crusts.

Nut and Celery Sandwiches.—Chop together a bunch of celery and three-fourths of a cupful of walnut meats. Mix the yolks of two eggs with two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of mustard, a dash of red pepper and a half cup of vinegar, very gradually. Add enough of the dressing to the nuts and celery to moisten, and spread on slices of buttered bread.

Savory Loaf.—This is a good substitute for meat. It may be made into croquettes, fried in deep fat and served with peas. Mix well four cupfuls of bread crumbs, one cup of chopped nuts, one hard cooked egg chopped, one medium sized onion grated, half a teaspoonful each of sage and salt, sufficient milk to moisten the mixture to mold into a loaf. A well greased single loaf bread pan is a good pan to bake it in, as it turns out well molded. Serve either hot or cold with peas or tomato sauce, or simply without any sauce.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People
BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Now that the shop windows are alight with all the cheer of Christmas it is brought home to the minds of all the housekeepers that if their shopping is not yet finished they had best make themselves make an extra effort to finish this off-time wearing work while their is still much to choose from and while they are not yet wearied with the seemingly unending abate work of Christmas preparations.

We read so much about when to shop, how to shop and just where to shop, that we are apt to get a bit weary of the well-meant advice.

This fact must force itself before the mind of every right thinking person, that in justice to everyone concerned we should shop early—if possible mornings, for then you can do so much better; be waited on without the tiresome wait that can not fail to be our's if there be a rush.

The rush is sure to be on the last days before the 25th, consequently the wise woman who shops early in the morning and the season, is sure of it from every point of view.

The "sense of duty" presents are happily on the wane. May they be more so! Don't buy unless you buy in the right spirit; unless you can afford it; unless you know—at least a little—the tastes of the one you are buying for.

The last sentence should be indelibly stamped on the mind of every prospective purchaser; for who of us, speaking candidly, is not the recipient of many presents that we mildly wonder if they are really for us? Some of us are just as sure as the others of our well meaning friends are of the opinion that monstrosities are quite the thing to present, when in doubt.

When in doubt as to what to give, why give? Honestly speaking, you wouldn't you prefer a card with just the dear old greeting rather than a gift entirely unsuited?

And honestly speaking, wouldn't you rather yourself send out a simple card,

PREPARING PORK FOR WINTER; VEGETABLES TO SERVE WITH IT.

"We ought to wake up in the morning glad there is a new day coming."

In thinking of cold weather foods our minds naturally turn to the meat dishes, as they are classed with the muscle and tissue—building foods and are more desirable than the main diet.

Some of the meats are easy of digestion and others are not, but in a general way the meats are good for the life or occupation of the individual. Beef is the best all around meat for young people. Pork is hard to digest, but if eaten by active people and in moderate quantities, as it is a heartening food, it will be experienced. It should always be served with a tart apple sauce, as this helps in the digestion. As there are more of the heat and energy properties in pork, rather than tinned hams, serve with beans, peas, cabbage or spinach. Combination meats are suggested as follows:

Baked ham in cider.—Sweet potatoes, cabbage, sliced sauer.

Roasted or fried ham.—Mashed potatoes, cabbage salad, baked apples.

Roasted pork.—Applesauce, herring, cold slaw, mashed potatoes.

Pork chops.—Cold apples, cold slaw, baked potatoes, baked and mashed squash.

Crown Roast Pork. twelve sausage dressing or onions.

Directions.—Most housekeepers are familiar with the crown roast of lamb. The butcher will take a similar rack of chops, tying them together. Trim the bones free from fat and wrap well with paraffine paper or put squares of fat meat at the ends of each bone. Fill the center with sausage meat mixed with one-third the quantity of bread crumbs, or when baked, fill with mashed potatoes and serve cooked carrots and small onions around it.

Salt Pork and Milk Gravy.

Materials.—Thin salt pork, milk, one cup, flour, two tablespoonfuls.

Directions.—Put thin slices of salt pork into a spider over the fire and cover with cold water. Bring slowly to the boiling point, pour off the water and fry until the meat is brown and crisp. Remove to a hot platter, turn off all the fat but about one tablespoonful. Add the flour, rub smooth and turn in the milk. Stir and cook until smooth, thinning with more milk if desired. Turn this over the pork on the platter and serve with mashed potatoes and turnips and apple sauce.

Pork Tenderloins.

Materials.—Two tenderloins, salt, pepper, onion, butter, a dash of Worcestershire sauce.

Directions.—Wipe tenderloins and cut a slit clear down the side. Make a well-seasoned bread dressing and fill this space, tying up well. Lay these in a dripping pan, season with salt and pepper and crisp. Remove to a hot platter, turn off all the fat but about one tablespoonful. Add the flour, rub smooth and turn in the milk. Stir and cook until smooth, thinning with more milk if desired. Turn this over the pork on the platter and serve with mashed potatoes and turnips and apple sauce.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am afflicted with dandruff in my hair and am very eager to cure the disease.

Is there any cure? If so, what is it?

It is almost impossible to get rid of dandruff entirely. Some physicians have even said that one cannot have a good head of hair without some dandruff. However, it is a condition of the scalp and every means should be tried to get rid of it.

Alcohol into scalp. A mixture of sulphur and vaseline rubbed well into the scalp is also good, but one must be very careful not to get the head wet or take cold.

Wash the hair every two or three weeks. Beat up two or three eggs, rub well into the hair and scalp, let dry. Dissolve a teaspoonful of washing soda in a cup of boiling water. Put this into about three quarts of cool water. Wash out the egg. Then rinse hair in fresh water and use several waters for rinsing until the last water is clear.

One of the main things is to never use a brush or comb that is not absolutely clean. Never use any brush or comb but your own and see that they are kept clean. Brush the hair well every day with a fairly stiff brush.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What will poison the roots of hair so they will never appear again on my lip? There are remedies to remove freckles and to make the hair grow, also to whiten the skin, remove blackheads, etc., why not a remedy to poison the roots so they will never appear again. When the hairs are pulled out by the roots they come in again.

There is nothing that will destroy superfluous hair, my dear, except the electric needle. If you pull out the hairs they will grow in again. You might put peroxide on them until they are faded and do not show so plainly, but that will dry and wrinkle the skin. Take the electric treatment, if possible. Every fair-skinned city has a "beauty parlor" where the electric needle is properly handled.

(2) Is it right to dance and play kissing games?

(3) Is it right to have the boys come and take us both to and from church or should they just bring us home?

(4) Should we take them up in our bedrooms?

(5) Should we sit on the dark porch evenings and should we go walking in dark places?

DOROTHY AND LEMORA.

(1) You are both too young to marry. The boys perhaps have more sense than you have, for they know they are too young to marry and that they are not able to support a wife. When a man really loves you he won't be too bashful to tell you so.

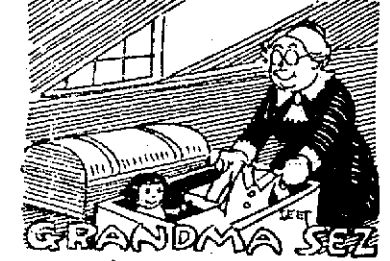

(2) I see no harm in dancing if it is done properly, among respectable people. I do not approve of kissing games.

(3) It is very nice for the boys to call for you and also to take you home from church.

(4) My goodness. NO! A girl's bedroom should be her most sacred place of privacy.

(5) It seems to me it would be nicer to go to places where you could see each other's faces. I wouldn't care for a boy who couldn't face the light when he was with me.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of the ordinary cough more quickly, usually clearing it in inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for spasmodic croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and bronchitis.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 2 1/2 pints of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help relieve a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in quaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination. This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, but the old successful mixture has never been equaled. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"Indeed, Mademoiselle wishes it," she assured him. "It will be a trip to France for going to France for ten minutes, and being among the French is so comfortable." She turned a deaf ear to his protests. "Wait now, till I chair so that it faced him, and dropped into it. 'Put a footstool for me,' she ordered, as southern women order the chair they care for—and the men they do not. And she tucked back with her little feet on it and smiled at him. For a moment the man's brilliant gaze rested on her and the girl saw it and thrilled to it. 'Now, Monsieur, racontez-moi une histoire,' she spoke softly. Francois Beaupre's look turned from her to the fire, and the air of gazing at something far away came again. 'It is a picture I see as I think of that time of my childhood,' he began, as if speaking to himself. 'A picture many times painted in homelike colors on my brain. Many a night in the winter I have sat, a little boy, by the side of my grandmother, at that great hearth, and have looked and have seen all the faces, have heard all the voices and the fire crackling, and the spinning-wheel whirling, even as I see them and hear them tonight. I was always close by the grand-mère, for I was the dearest of the children to her. Some times long after bedtime I sat there, but very quietly, for fear that my mother might remember and send me to bed; yet she liked to please the grand-mère, so I stayed often longer than the others. It was a great room, and across one corner was the hearth which was raised like a throne, Mademoiselle, from the floor, twelve feet wide. One burned logs six feet long within it, and from up the chimney came the crackling of the fire, and from which were hung the kettles. It was the house of a peasant, Mademoiselle knows, yet it was the best house in the village. Often, of a November night, the neighbors would come in, perhaps a dozen, perhaps more, and the young men had their work—they arranged the flax for spinning, it might be, and the young girls prepared apples to dry, and the mothers knit, and the grand-mère would sit in the rocking for our winter wear, and the grand-mère would be spinning linen threads for our clothing—whirr, whirr—I can hear the low sound of her wheel. And always I, Francois, would be on the stool at her side, and knit and listening. For my father was a great raconteur, and he told stories of the war and of the legends of that country. It was an ancient country you must know, Mademoiselle, and the name of our village itself was from the Romans. Vicques was the name and that as you know, Mademoiselle, and the name of our village itself was from the Romans. Vicques was the name, and as you know, Mademoiselle, comes from the Latin word vicus, a village. So that there were old castles in ruins in those parts and tales of buried treasure, and ghosts in armor guarding it, and great dogs that brooded there, and other things near and horrible to the ear of a little boy. On the cold nights, as the fire roared up the chimney and the grand-mère's wheel whirled softly, my father and the other men told these tales, and I listened, quiet as a mouse in my corner, and from time to time I saw a young man lean over and whisper in the ear of one of the young girls, and I wondered why her face became red as the freckles.

And from time to time one of the men, as he talked, rose up and strode across the room to the great oak table where lay always on a wooden plate long loaf of black bread, with butter, and always a glass and a bottle of eau-de-vie—brandy. And remember how manly it looked to me, watching, when I saw him take the loaf under his arm and hold it, and slice off boldly a great piece of the fresh rye bread, and pour out a glass of brandy and toss it off as he ate the bread. The stories seemed to grow better after the water had done that. And always I waited, even through the tale of the ghost and the fire-breathing hound, till the talk should swing round, as it did ever toward the end, to the stories of Napoleon that were fresh in men's minds in those days. It was as if I sat on needles before my bedtime came, yet I did not dare to be restless and move about for fear that my mother might send me suddenly to bed. But always gave a sigh of content and always the grand-mère patted my head softly to hear it, when my father cleared his throat and began—

There is a small thing that happened when the Emperor was marching—and then he was launched on his tale. A great hickory log fell, rolled out toward the hearth. The carved nymphs and shepherds seemed to be in disapproval at this irregularity, and the girl in the deep chair smiled, but the man sprang up and put the log back in place with quick efficiency. He stood silent by the tall mantelpiece, deep yet in his reverie, as the flames caught the wood again and sparkled and sputtered.

"Did any of them ever see Napoleon—the men who talked about him?" the girl asked.

"The Frenchman turned a queer look at her, and did not answer. 'Did any of your family ever see him, Monsieur?' she asked again. The alert figure stepped backward, sat down again on the gilded chair of the Frenchman, and looked forward considerably. Francois nodded as if to the fire. 'But yes, Mademoiselle,' he said, in a whisper.

"Oh, tell me!" the girl cried, all interest. "Who was it? Was it he? It couldn't be—he hesitated a moment. 'If you, whom I know so well, should have seen the Emperor, that serious young mistress of Roanoke House, whom the country people knew. 'Quickly, Monsieur, tell me if it was yourself!'

Francois turned his eyes on her. 'Yes, Mademoiselle,' he answered. 'A log slipped and slid and the sparks caught a new surcoat and flew about in a crackling uproar; the elfish light shivered brilliantly on the girl's fair hair as she bent forward with her white teeth gleaming, her blue eyes shining, stared with the dramatic air of the Frenchman. With a catch of her breath—

'You have seen Napoleon!' she said, and then, impetuously, 'Tell me about it! But, though he smiled at her, he did not answer. 'What a delightful amusement which she seemed of all sentiments, oftenest to inspire in him, he did not answer.

'Monsieur! you will not refuse to tell me when I want to know so much!' she pleaded. 'How old were you? Did he speak to you? What did he say to you?'

And the Frenchman laughed as if at a dear child who was absurd. 'Mademoiselle asks many questions—which I shall answer,' he murmured, and then he turned to her with the tone of love, and she trembled to hear it.

'Answer,' she began, and stammered and flushed, and stopped. 'Francois went on, little thinking what damage he was doing with his unconscious charm of voice and look. 'It is as Mademoiselle wishes, most certainly. I will even answer Mademoiselle's two questions at once to her. It was when I was not quite three years old, Mademoiselle, at home in the farm-house in the valley of the Jura.'

'And he spoke to you, to your own self? Are you sure?'

'But yes, he spoke to me, Mademoiselle.'

'What did he say?' The smile on Francois' face went out and into its place swept an intensity of feeling; he answered solemnly. 'There were many things, Mademoiselle, but they have been much to my life. They shall lead my life, if God pleases, those words shall lead it to the fate which they foretold.'

'Francois went on, and the words whispered at the girl, impressed with awe. Francois suddenly stood erect and stretched out his arm as if to hold a sword. 'Rise, Chevalier Francois Beaupre, one day a Marshal of France under another Napoleon,' he repeated dramatically. 'Those were the words the Emperor said.'

CHAPTER XXIX
The Story Again

The girl, her face lifted to him, looked, bewildered, 'don't understand.' The visionary eyes stared at her uncertainly. 'I have never told this thing,' he said in a low tone.

'Ah—but it's only me,' begged the girl.

'Only you, Mademoiselle!' His voice went on as if reflecting aloud. 'It is the guiding star of my life—that story; yet I may tell it—he paused—to only you.'

Again the girl quivered, feeling the intensity, mistaking its meaning. 'I should be glad if you would tell it,' she spoke almost in a whisper, but Francois, floating backward on a strong tide to those old beloved days, did not notice.

In his mind was the memory of the great entry of the farm-house, and the children crowding about the grand-mère, and the gentle old voice, now gone into silence, which had told the tale. The sunshine lay in patches on the floor, the breeze tossed the red and yellow tulips in the garden, and through the open door she saw his mother move about the kitchen getting dinner ready before the father should come in from his fields. All the early life, long dissolved in the past, materialized before him, and his heart ached with a longing to speak of them, to relieve thus the pressure of the crowding thoughts of home. 'I may seem a simple affair to you, Mademoiselle—I can not tell that it has affected my life. The way of it was this: Napoleon marched to Germany in the year 1813, and passed with his staff through our village. The house of my father was the largest in the village, and it was chosen to be, for an hour, the Emperor's headquarters, and the Emperor held a council of war, he and his generals, there, a child of three, was sleeping in a room which opened from the great room and I awakened with the sound of voices, and ran in, unnoticed, for they were all bent over the table, and looking at the maps and lists of the army—and I pulled at the sword of Marshal Ney. And the marshal, turning quickly, knocked me over. I cried out, and my grandmother ran to me, and I have often heard her tell the shoulder of the big sword, but she would not let her pass and how she saw a young general pick me up and set me on my feet, and how all the great officers laughed when he said, 'that the sword was in contest between Marshal Ney and me. And how then, the young general suggested that, to settle the point amicably, the marshal should draw his sword, and give me the accolade—the blow of knighthood. And so, Mademoiselle, to shorten the tale, it was not the marshal, but the Emperor himself who chose to do it. He made me kneel before him, I—a baby—and he struck my shoulder the blow of the accolade, and said the words which I have told you.'

Francois sprang to his feet and stood as he repeated once more the Emperor's words. His voice shook. 'Rise, Chevalier Francois Beaupre, one day a Marshal of France under another Napoleon,' he cried, and then through the words which he repeated.

The girl leaning forward, watched him with a gasp she spoke. 'Then—that's why you are really Chevalier Beaupre? Did the Emperor have the right to—' 'To knight you?'

'But yes, Mademoiselle,' Francois answered with decision. 'I have studied the question, and I believe that the accolade—the knighthood—was all ways a right of the monarchs of France, disused, perhaps at times, but yet held in abeyance, a right. My family did not agree with me. My father, who was very practical, thought that it was a mere fiction of the Emperor's—or if not a joke, then a caprice which carried no weight. But the seigneur—the General Gourmand, who was one of Napoleon's officers, and others, Mademoiselle, believe as I do, that the Emperor's word should carry no weight. There has never lived on earth a man of so enormous a force, and even the smallest acts of his were history. If the Emperor ordained, then, that a little child of the people, a peasant, should be a noble—why it was well within his power—it was done. And am that child.'

The glance of his brilliant eyes met hers with a frankness which she showed that he claimed nothing which he did not feel; that this haphazard nobility had lived in his soul and grown with his growth, and come to him with a gentle humility, the very winning as it sprang from his gentle pride, he went on.

'I know, Mademoiselle, that I am a peasant and that I must be content with a small place in life at the present. I know this. And even that position which I have is more than my brothers. For you must know Mademoiselle, that the others grew up to be farmers or tradesmen. He hesitated, and then in a few words told the story of his father, the seigneur of Vicques, and how he had given the peasant boy all the opportunities which his own son could have had. And as he talked he remembered how, inside the bare, little new cottage and watched through the window his mother standing at the gate and talking to the seigneur, who held Lisette's bride. It seemed to him he could see the part of his father, and the deep point of his white neck-handkerchief, as she stood with her back to him, and the big bow of the apron tied about her waist. This picture came vividly. And it opened his heart to that he talked on, and told his story in a strange land many things that had lain close and silent in his heart. He told her about the general's gruffness, which could not hide his goodness; and how he had come to be the child of the castle as well as of the cottage; something of Pietro also he told her; but he did not mention Alixe.

'You spoke of three children, Monsieur; who was the third?' asked Francois went on as if he had not heard the question. 'It was a happy life, Mademoiselle,' he said. 'And it has been so ever since—even, for the most part, in prison. I have wondered at times if the world is all filled with such kind of people as I have met, or if it is just my good luck.'

Lucy Hampton had been reading aloud to her sick black nanny that day, and some of the words of the book she had read came to her, and seemed to fit. 'The kingdom of God is within you,' she quoted softly, to Francois. Then she considered a moment.

'Monsieur, would it be impertinent for me to ask you a question—a personal question?'

'I think not, Mademoiselle,' he smiled at her, hesitating a little. 'Father was talking of how Prince Louis Bonaparte served, a few years ago, with the Italian revolutionists. I wondered if—if by chance you had fought under him.'

He shook his head. 'I had not that happiness, Mademoiselle.'

'The heir of the Bonapartes now is that Prince Louis Napoleon, is it not?' she questioned.

'Ladies and gentlemen,' he remarked, 'I forgot to mention that in this incomparable book there is a blank page—for those who cannot read.'

But the audience were unappreciative, and he failed to dispose of a single copy. The cheapjack looked over the crowd with disgust that could not be disguised. "Ladies and gentlemen," he remarked, "I forgot to mention that in this incomparable book there is a blank page—for those who cannot read."

Not Hard to Deceive Moslems. Times have changed since Captain Burton, 60 years ago, made a pilgrimage to Mecca at the peril of his life. A recent account of such a pilgrimage, by A. J. B. Wavell, says that with a passable knowledge of Arabic and of Moslem ceremonial, and with due precautions as to avoiding pilgrims from the country to which one pretends to belong, 'the pilgrimage to Mecca may be made in disguise without running any risk worth mentioning.'

Sell Your Real Estate Through the Gazette Want Ads. They Work Fast and Bring Results. One-Half Cent a Word Pays the Bill.

Classified Want Ad?

"My place is for sale, I've put the sign on it," said Jenks to his up-town neighbor Blinks. "You live so far from the main street that few will read that sign, why not advertise your place? Then every English-speaking person for miles around will know your place is for sale. If you want quick results, run your For Sale Ad in your home paper," said Blinks.

"Do you think it will be a good investment?"

"Do I? Say, when my brother had his place up for sale he first nailed a sign on it. That brought no results—well he did get three callers, no buyers. Then he advertised it in the want ad columns and in all he got over twenty answers and he sold the place at one hundred more than he first expected to ask for it. When he saw the people coming he promptly raised on his price, and he got it." "If you want to sell your place before the moss grows over that sign you nailed up, advertise."

THE RATE FOR ADVERTISEMENTS in these classified columns is 1/2-cent a word each insertion. No order for less than 25 cents. The charge rate is 1 cent per word. Address can be given care of Gazette if so desired.

Stop That Cough In A Minute

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by percolation from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, December 4, 1873.—Y. M. C. A. Election: The little excitement which was stirred up on Tuesday night's meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association and the nomination of two tickets which resulted from differences among the members seems to awaken public interest in the result of the election. We have heard intimations that another ticket will be put in before the final election and all the positions filled. It appears that the members of the association have become aroused and have decided upon a complete reorganization of the association and an interesting time is looked for on the coming Monday night.

There was a regular meeting of the common council last night. Mayor Sutherland and all the aldermen present with the exception of Alderman Hanson. Regular routine business was transacted.

The funeral of R. M. Wheeler, from the Trinity church was held yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended by the Masonic order and other friends of the deceased.

Chief Engineer Britton has instructed the engineers of the steamers to keep water hot in their engines and everything ready for use. The severe weather and fierce wind of last night and today induces this precaution on the part of the careful head of the fire department.

Farmers are plowing in the fields east and south of this city, a circumstance that rarely occurs during the month of December, more than once in a life time. They are not plowing today, however, nor will not work tomorrow.

The carrier boy of the overland mail, a mere boy in years, was so overcome by cold during last night's storm that he would have perished but for the timely assistance of a farmer.

Twenty-two years ago today, a crank demanded $1,250,000 of Russell Sage and exploded a bomb killing himself and another man, and wounding Mr. Sage—December 4, 1891.
